RE: ADM File No. 2023-35

The proposed new rule's focus on "bias, prejudice, or harassment" (without defining what that constitutes) goes on to include a long list of intersectional characteristics that smacks of identity politics and requiring every legal professional to toe a line of participating in someone's mental illness or risk professional censure for using a masculine pronoun to describe a man who thinks he's a woman.

Gender dysphoria is the only mental illness whose prescribed therapy (according to modern American society) includes forcing others to play along with the delusion experienced. I won't do it, and it's disheartening that my profession would try to coerce me to do so for political reasons.
