The motion for reconsideration of the April 8, 2026 order is DENIED.

Adrienne N. Young
Presiding Judge

Young, P.J. (concurring in the judgment): I write separately to note that, contrary to defendant's assertions, neither the title nor the substance of defendant's or plaintiff's motions establish that the March 9, 2026 order was a change in the custodial environment. Instead, the recommended parenting order from February, ultimately adopted by order in March, noted that "the child has a shared established custodial environment with both parties" and established an interim parenting time schedule "to maintain[] connections with both parents" and not disturb the custodial environment. The record does not support the allegation that this Court palpably erred, so I deny reconsideration.
