The application for leave to appeal is denied because defendant has failed to furnish the necessary record to facilitate proper appellate review of the issues raised here. See People v Elston, 462 Mich 751, 762; 614 NW2d 595 (2000) (observing that appellants bear "the burden of furnishing . . . a record to verify the factual basis of any argument upon which reversal [i]s predicated"). See also MCR 7.205(E)(1) ("The application is decided on the documents filed and, in an appeal from an administrative tribunal or agency, the certified record."); IOP 7.205(B)(1) ("The Court strongly recommends that the appellant file copies of relevant transcripts and pleadings because the Court does not receive the lower court record when deciding applications for leave to appeal."); People v Johnson, 502 Mich 541, 571; 918 NW2d 676 (2018) (holding that, to properly analyze a claim for relief under Cress,[1] the reviewing court "must" consider both "the evidence presented at the original trial" and "the evidence that would be presented at a new trial").
