The application for leave to appeal is DENIED because defense counsel has failed to provide the necessary record to facilitate appellate review. See People v Elston, 462 Mich 751, 762; 614 NW2d 595 (2000) (observing that appellants bear "the burden of furnishing . . . a record to verify the factual basis of any argument upon which reversal [i]s predicated"). See also MCR 7.205(E)(1) ("The application is decided on the documents filed and, in an appeal from an administrative tribunal or agency, the certified record."); IOP 7.205(B)(1) ("The Court strongly recommends that the appellant file copies of relevant transcripts and pleadings because the Court does not receive the lower court record when deciding applications for leave to appeal."). Specifically, the defense has failed to furnish a copy of the disputed video recording, which was introduced into evidence at the preliminary examination and viewed by the district court. Without a copy of that video, we are unable to properly analyze the sole issue raised on appeal. See People v Henderson, 282 Mich App 307, 312-313; 765 NW2d 619 (2009) ("In reviewing the bindover decision, a circuit court must consider the entire record of the preliminary examination and may not substitute its judgment for that of the district court. . . . This Court also reviews the bindover decision de novo to determine whether the district court abused its discretion.")
