Comment:

I would suggest at least two problems with the proposed amendment. First, if a defendant's misconduct post-plea will change the terms of the bargain, they should be advised of this before the plea is entered (not after). Second, I'm not sure what is gained by advising a defendant that the plea can be withdrawn in accordance with MCR 6.310, when due process principles would also apply. See People v Cole, 491 Mich 325, 332 (2012).
